The length or height of the board important for timber grain as this will indicate the direction of the grain (example a drawer front will have a height smaller than the width since the grain mostly run up and down)

Then the edges to be covered , 1 indicating 1 edge, and 2 two edges on each pieces

If out of 2 pieces of the same size only one requires a edge, then enter each pieces on a individual line and do not fill any edging on the piece that does not require edging
